GRAINS

Confused? Here's an insiders tip to the following foods:

Couscous Looks like a grain but more like a pasta, crushed semolina bound with water.

Israeli Couscous Fat, dried pearls made from a paste of ground hard wheat flour, then toasted dry.

Farro An ancient form of whole wheat also known as spelt.

Freekeh A highly nutritious grain made from roasted green grains.

Fregolone Actually a pasta from Sardinia which is larger than couscous and toasted hard.

Mougrabiah A larger version of couscous, made into small balls then coated with finely ground hard white wheat.

PASTA

All our dried pastas are made using traditional methods and this gives them a superior flavour and more robust texture. The pasta is left to dry naturally and slowly giving it a more complex flavour and leaving the gluten intact. This prevents the pasta from going mushy when cooked. In addition all our pastas are made using bronze rather than teflon or plastic dyes, giving the surface of the pasta a rough texture, which allows the flavour of the sauce to penetrate the pasta.

Michel Cluizel French Couverture

Dedicated to extremely high quality chocolate, Michel Cluizel, a family owned French chocolatier, is one of the few to process their own cocoa beans. This allows them to control the quality at every stage of the chocolate making process. He is one of the few companies to make chocolate without soy lecithin. They source pure Bourbon vanilla beans and use cane sugar. Michel Cluizel chocolate is aromatic, complex and perfectly balanced.
